CC SERIES

The Robertshaw (formerly Eaton) line of direct replacement CC Cold Controls were designed for use in household and commercial refrigerators and freezers. The controls, also useful in water coolers, beverage dispensers, display cases and air conditioning units, are one of two basic types of Cold Control design, constant differential and constant cut-in.

Constant differential types are also called straight range. They have a fixed differential that remains constant regardless of external adjustment. The constant cut-in designs offer an external adjustable differential.

In both designs, the contacts close on an increase in temperature. The gas within the capillary tube reacts to temperature changes and actuates the power element diaphragm to trip the toggle mechanism.
